

MAD Academy Song Lyrics

Ralph's Dance

Ralph loved music, he liked the beat
And when he heard it, he'd tap his feet.
But he wouldn't dance, he didn't know how.
He'd just shake his head and scratch his brow
And stand there till the song was sung.
He longed to dance, it looked such fun!

So, one day, he decided to learn
And went and asked each friend in turn,
'How do you dance, just what do you do?
I want to be able to dance like you!'

He went to the parrot and asked for advice,
'To dance like you would be ever so nice.'
'Well,' squawked the parrot, 'I just ruffle my feathers.
I flap my wings, then bring them together.
But how you move doesn't matter,
Just join in when the music begins!

So, one day, he decided to learn
And went and asked each friend in turn,
'How do you dance, just what do you do?
I want to be able to dance like you!'

He went to the elephant and asked for advice,
'To dance like you would be ever so nice.'
'Well,' boomed the elephant, 'I move to the side.
I make my steps small then I make them wide.
But how you move doesn't matter,
Just join in when the music begins!

So, one day, he decided to learn
And went and asked each friend in turn,
'How do you dance, just what do you do?
I want to be able to dance like you!'

MAD Academy Song Lyrics

He went to the snake and asked for advice,
'To dance like you would be ever so nice.'
'Well,' hissed the snake, 'I like to twist and curl.
And right at the end I kind of do a big twirl.
But how you move doesn't matter,
Just join in when the music begins!

So, one day, he decided to learn
And went and asked each friends in turn,
'How do you dance, just what do you do?
I want to be able to dance like you!'

He went to the monkey and asked for advice,
'To dance like you would be ever so nice.'
'Well,' laughed the monkey, 'I swing to and fro.
I reach up high then I reach down low.
But how you move doesn't matter,
Just join in when the music begins!
